

A city I'd like to visit is Seattle. Downtown's revitalization has been most dramatic, originating in the Gaslamp Quarter, followed by a new ballpark in 2004 and block after block of restaurants, hotels, and condos, turning the city into a major convention destination. But the city's finest asset, its outdoor recreation areas, thrive close by and are a top attraction for those who invest the time to discover them.

